COURSE OVERVIEW

A specialized course that prepares participants to operate, supervise and manage powered industrial trucks safely.

Forklifts and other powered industrial trucks drive productivity in warehouses, construction and industry, but present serious risks when mishandled. The course covers truck types and hazards, an in-depth review of OSHA 29 CFR 1910.178, operator training and evaluation, and inspection, maintenance and recordkeeping.

Participants also cover load handling and stability, environmental conditions and workplace design, advanced hazard analysis, emergency response, complex scenarios, managing a PIT safety program and OSHA inspections, supported by templates and case studies. Graduates are equipped to run safe truck operations.
